

The 2025 Hereford Ringing Course

Application Procedure Notes

These notes accompany the form students should complete to apply for a place on the course. Their aim is to help you with the form, so you understand what we are trying to find out. Along with the form and these notes, you should also read the course programme, and if you can, take a look at the website too – there is more information there on lectures than we can provide in the programme.

There are several parts to the form. The first part is general information – the name and tower you give here will be used by us when we compile lists for group leaders for example. If you want your application to be considered with others, please add their names. We will only accept your application if we also accept the other names given. An email address here will be very helpful – it will ease communication if you are accepted, and your group leader may want to get in touch with you before you arrive.

In part B, you select the group you wish to join. The programme describes what each of the groups will cover and what you should be able to do already before joining that group. To get the most from the course, our experience (and we've been doing this for 60 years!) is that people do better when they underestimate their abilities, not overestimate them. The course is quite intensive, and you will be ringing with unfamiliar ringers on strange bells. You won't get the most benefit if you are at the edge of your ability. One key point to consider is that you are completing the form in December/January, and the course is not until the beginning of April. Whilst it is tempting to predict the progress you will make over this time, if you get it wrong you may find you are struggling when you arrive. It's always much easier to cope with someone who is at the top end of the group than someone who is below the bottom end of the group. We also find that bell control can be a problem. Whilst we try to provide easy going bells for group practicals, these will be of varying weights and draughts. Bells that are heavier or lighter than you are used to, or have the ceiling further away than you are used to, can cause problems. Try to ring on a variety of bells before you come, and try and practice bell-control by itself – balancing a tied bell 10 times out of 10 is a good test that you are in charge. Doing it on an unfamiliar bell is even better. Groups A & B will do this as an exercise on the first evening.

Once we have allocated you to a group, we cannot change this when you arrive – there are too many interconnections to unravel if we try – so please don't ask us to do it.

There is space on the form to tell us what you can already ring. We do not use this information to make choices about whom we accept or not, except in the case of Group K, but it is helpful to us when placing students in particular groups, and it helps group leaders prepare for the course. Please rate your experience ringing rounds, call changes, the treble and inside to methods using the following letters:

- a) Hardly at all/none
- b) Have rung with help
- c) Can ring plain courses with confidence, or touches with help
- d) Can ring touches with confidence.

For example, an applicant to group A might just write rounds on 6 (b), call changes (a). An applicant to group D might put Plain Hunt Doubles inside (c), Treble to Plain Bob Doubles (d), inside to Plain Bob Doubles (a). For applicants to higher groups (G and above) please tell us about your experience in the methods you've chosen to learn on the course – we don't need a list of everything you've ever rung, just some guidance about your current experience.

Part C is for the non-group sessions and lectures. There is additional information about these sessions on the website, and you might find it helpful to read this before making your choices. Please enter your choice of lecture (using the lecture number) for each session.

Some lectures/sessions are duplicated and you can choose any of the sessions. Some sessions are in two parts, and you really cannot expect to benefit from the second without also attending the first – these are

- Raise and Fall in peal on Friday and Saturday evenings – if you want to do this, please choose both sessions.
- Handbells (both X and Y) – it's fine to go to the first session alone, but not to the second alone.
- Conducting practicals -where the theory session on Friday afternoon is compulsory if you want to do the practical in the evening. You can do the theory without the practical.

So please:

If you want to do Raise and Fall, you must choose both 11 and 23

Handbells X - do not choose 27 without 16

Handbells Y - do not choose 36 without 7

Conducting practicals - do not choose 13 without choosing one from 4, 5 or 6

There are also a few limitations for A & B applicants. These groups will do a Listening and Timing session in one of their group theory sessions, and will be duplicating this if they choose the Listening and Timing practicals (sessions 10 and 22) on Friday or Saturday evenings. We will give priority to applicants from groups C and above to these sessions. A & B applicants should not choose 'Hereford Cathedral' (number 24) either, as the Cathedral Guild have asked us to limit the number of students visiting the Cathedral to 40, and this is the easiest way to manage the selection. In contrast, A & B students will be given priority for the Raise and Fall sessions, but as outlined above, please choose both sessions if you want to do this.

There are some sessions where we have to limit the numbers attending, so we ask you to make a second preference in case your first preference is oversubscribed. These are:

- Tower maintenance (8 & 20) on Friday and Saturday evenings
- Listening and timing session (10 & 22) on Friday and Saturday evenings
- Raise and Fall sessions (11 & 23) on Friday and Saturday evenings
- Visit to Hereford Cathedral (24) on Saturday evening

We will tell you when you arrive (on your registration document) to which sessions you have been allocated. We expect students to select at least four lecture options. If you choose fewer than four, we may reject your application – faced with two similar applicants, we will always choose the one more committed to the course.

Part D is concerned with transport. If you are arriving by train we will happily come to Hereford Station to meet you, but you need to tell us which train you will be on. If you don't know the details at the time of application, or if you change your arrival details, please let us know – email is best. Your driver will be carrying a copy of the course logo!

If you can drive a car during the course, please complete the section regarding the number of passengers. When we allocate students and helpers to groups we try to ensure there is sufficient transport for each group for each practical session. If couples arrive in one car, please don't both say you have a car, though it would help to know if either of you could drive it. If you will have your car with you please take note of the various parking restrictions around the college and of the traffic notes in the programme.

Part E is about meals. If you want all meals, please tick the 'all meals' box, and pass on to part F. Otherwise, if you only want some meals (and this includes tea and coffee) please complete the table and work out the cost of meals (this will be used in part G). Lunch on Friday and Saturday is between practicals, and a pub meal is suggested – that's what most people in the group will do, but it is not compulsory. Please bear in mind that often there is no other choice unless you bring your own sandwiches. Tea and coffee are not provided after main meals in the college.

Part F is where you choose if you want to be resident or not. If you leave this part blank, we will assume you want to be non-resident. The number of bedrooms available at the college has been reduced over the years, and the number of students we can accept will be severely limited if all choose to be resident. To this end, there is now a box on the form where you can choose to be resident if we have space, but non-resident if not. If you choose this box, we will endeavour to find you a room in college, but if not you will need to find your own accommodation. We will inform you which it is when we send your acceptance early in February. There are several budget-price hotels nearby, and for a couple or a family this option is likely to be cheaper than the college. You can still order all meals at the college.

All the college bedrooms are en-suite. The full-time students at the college are visually impaired and sometimes deaf too. The college has some bedrooms with special fire alarms for such cases. Please tell us now if you need such a room.

Fees: Students pay £155 for the cost of tuition, but to encourage young applicants, we are offering a discounted fee of £100 for under 18's. We need a deposit of at least £100 with your application, which we will return if you are unsuccessful. Because of difficulties returning online payments, the deposit must be made by cheque. We will only cash these cheques for accepted students, which we will do on Monday, 3rd February. If you are successful, we will send you an invoice for the remainder once you have chosen which meals (if any) you want to order. You must pay in full by 17th March 2025, but the final payment can be made online – details will be provided with your acceptance. We will not present any final cheques until 17th March. Cheques should be made payable to Hereford Ringing Course.

Finally please sign and date the form. (Applicants under 18 should ask their parent/guardian to sign too). By signing the form you are agreeing to the terms and conditions listed above the signature, including that you've read and understood these notes. You are also agreeing to pay the balance due by 17th March 2025 if you are accepted. If you need to cancel and you let us know before 17th March, we will probably be able to allocate your place to someone else and refund your payment. Last minute cancellations usually cannot be filled, and refunds cannot be made. You might care to consider a holiday cancellation insurance policy to cover this eventuality.

The closing date for applications is Wednesday 31st January. We will inform you if you have been successful early in February. Under normal circumstances, applications received after 31st January will not be considered. There is no point sending an application after this date without first contacting the course secretary by telephone or email (alison@herefordringingcourse.org.uk).

The Course Secretary is Alison Moreton, 1 Silcoates Drive, Wrenthorpe, Wakefield, West Yorkshire, WF2 0UR, ☎
07488 919035. The application should be posted to this address.
